

Reflection on Turner Construction

I feel that I have gained a lot of information about Turner Construction that I did not know about. Researching this company has been a good experience for me for several reasons. First of all I have researched this company in hopes that it will help me in the future in case I may interview with Turner Construction.

Secondly, it helps me realize that there is a lot more to a company than just its name. There are a lot of characteristics that make up a company and I realize this by the research I have completed on Turner Construction. Thirdly, I would like to mention that by completing this project I will be more prepared for the next business I need to research. At the start of this project I had no idea where to obtain my information. Thanks to the Internet I was able to acquire information about the company. Turner's web page also had a link for more information. All a person had to do was enter their address and more information would be sent to them by mail. I asked for more information and within a week I had plenty of information about Turner Construction.

I have also realized that by researching a company a person can be farther ahead of a person that hasn't researched a company when it comes to an interview. I believe an interviewer can tell if the interviewee knows of the company in which they are applying for. I realize that a research paper is not appropriate for each company a person interviews with, but if a person takes the time to search for information on the company they then have a conversation piece for the interview.
