Co-op Job Description:

Office Co-op: Our office co-ops can be very versatile. Some are placed in the Estimating department where they learn to estimate various sized projects. Others will be chosen to work in Project Management where they can hone their skills on submittals, complete schedules and support the Project Manager in other day to day activities. Office Co-ops spend a couple hours a week on the job meeting with the site Supervisor to monitor the construction process.

Field Co-op: Ferguson has a field staff of over 230 employees year round, typically employing 10-20 co-ops from various schools. Co-ops have become instrumental in getting hundreds of buildings out of the ground. Field Co-ops will learn Concrete, Masonry, Steel, Carpentry, and Sheet Metal. While being in the field each and every day, the co-op will also be exposed to any and all subcontractor trades. Field co-ops work along side Crew Leaders and Supervisors to learn hands on. This training teaches how each trade contributes to the completion of a project.
